4 Ways to Get Dancer Legs

Dancer legs. They're not just long and lean. They're strong. They're flexible. And they don't necessarily come easy. We Rockettes keep our stems in shape through specific dance exercises that strengthen and lengthen. Here are four target moves from top to bottom (or should we say bottom to ankle) to get iconic dancer legs. Trust us, we're experts.

1. Glutes and Hamstrings:

Marching Hip Raise with Feet on a Swiss Ball

Who knew a simple dance exercise could get a toned dancer-derriere?! Having strong dancer glutes not only helps you move faster and more powerfully, but helps prevent knee and low back injuries, too.

2. Inner Thighs: Standing Plié Squats

Deborah Horton, dancer, personal trainer and group fitness instructor, tells Dance Spirit Magazine, "The inner thigh, like any upper leg area, helps stabilize the knee joint." And when it comes to turning out, many dancers try to work from their knees. Strong inner thighs, thanks to this dance exercise, help you turn out at the hip where it counts the most.

3. Hamstrings and Calves: Standing Leg Curl

Strong hamstrings let you pivot quicker, leap higher and move with powerful bursts of speed. This move gets you there, and all you need is a rolled-up yoga mat or towel, and a chair for balance if you need it.

4. Calves and Ankles: Ballet Calf Raises

For some, this dance exercise might seem like old hat, but we see it as classic. Ballet calf raises strengthen both parts of the calf—the gastrocnemius (that toned muscle you actually see on the back of your legs), as well as the soleus (beneath it). The next time you're balancing on the balls of your feet, whether in the dance studio or reaching for something in the grocery store, thank your strong calves.

WITH OUR CONDOLENCES

Mr. Jack Crum

Saturday May 16, 2015 - The twirling world is mourning the loss and honoring the life of Jack Crum. Jack was inducted into USTA's Hall of Fame in 1998. He served USTA as President, Executive Director, Board member and Chair of Judge's Association. He was the first U.S. Representative to the World Baton Twirling Federation. He coached many state, regional, and national champions. Jack was President of Star Line Baton Company and a generous philanthropist. The Crum Family is in our thoughts and prayers.

Major Eugene Shea

Tuesday March 31, 2015 - The twirling world lost Major Eugene 'Gene' Shea - top baton twirler, teacher, and innovator. Before World War II, baton twirling was dominated by men and Gene Shea was one of the best.

He was a wonderful coach and mentor for so many people, he's unbelievable.

After serving in the Army during the Korean War, Major Shea helped develop rules for the National Baton Twirling Association.

“He invented many tricks. He was really good at body wraps, wrapping around the body and neck. He also invented the hoop baton, which is just what it sounds like — a hoop with a baton in the middle” said his friend, Carolyn “Cookie” Thompson - 1967 Miss Majorette of America. After moving to Florida, Mr. Shea continued to give lessons and judge contests.

RETIREMENTS

After decades after her introduction to the sport at the age of 12, Joyce Ormshaw has announced she will be retiring from coaching baton twirling later this year. Ormshaw is considered a grassroots legend in the sport — whether it be as a coach, official or administrator — and she will leave behind some big shoes to fill. She has coached athletes at all levels, including elite. Among her countless honours in the sport are a Lifetime Achievement Award from the Canadian Baton Twirling

Federation (CBTF) in 1997 (the recipient must have served the CBTF for a minimum of 25 years) and a Volunteer of the Year Award from the CBTF in 2002. Ormshaw has also served on the board of this national organization, as well that of the Manitoba Baton Twirling Sportive Association (MBTSA). She received the Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Medal in 2012. "I'm extremely proud of former students who have continued in the sport to rate among some of Manitoba's top coaches. I support their enthusiasm and dedication. It takes a special, dedicated person to pass this love of the sport on to future baton twirlers. If you have a passion for what you love, you will succeed in what you love."

In The News...

Future Twirling Instructor...

Gianna H., fifth grader, and Applause of Bel Air travel team twirler, is shown demonstrating her twirling skills to the K-prep and Kindergarten students at their morning assembly at school. She taught them some basic twirling skills, proper marching technique, and showed off the trophies and medals she won at the recent Mid-Atlantic Regional Twirling Championships. She finished by performing her two-baton routine, to the delight of her audience. Thank you, Gianna for being such a great ambassador for the sport of baton twirling!
